About Emily

Emily, originally from Chilton, WI, has been living, studying, and working in Italy for the past four-five years. While living in Sardinia, Rome, and Milan Emily has had the opportunity to teach English, translate, and interpret for various companies, private entities, and U.S. government agencies.

By now a fluent Italian speaker (often times with a hint of a Roman accent), Emily is bringing her knowledge of Italian language and culture to the table and sharing this gift through food and education.

Italian language and culture lessons are held on Monday evenings from 6-8 p.m. at al corso restaurant. The first hour and 15 minutes are dedicated to language and grammar learning while the remainder of the evening focuses on a particular region of Italy, combined with specialty wines and unique Italian delicacies prepared by al corso's very own chef.
